OLD-SIGAT OR PRESBYOPIA.

This is the defect which nine times out of ten causes people to apply for glasses. It is caused by a hardening of the lens of the eye on account of old age and is the common lot of all, rich and poor alike. Old sight usually shows itself about the age forty to forty-five, when a glass of weak power will give the needed relief, but the lenses should be changed about every two years for a pair one degree stronger. Many people defer the use of glasses too long. Through pride they hate to resort to the dreaded spectacle, but it is utterly useless to fight age as far as our eyes are concerned. It is the part of wisdom to yield gracefully to the first signs of distress for the longer you put it off the more rapidly your eyesight will fail.

Should a good set of men be nominated this fall on the county ticket, it is the consensus of opinion both among republicans and democrats that a part, and possibly, the whole of the ticket will be elected.

Advents Break Camp.

The last of the camp meeting occurred in this city on Sunday eve ning, and immediately thereafter there were a great many of the campers busy packing their effects so as to be ready for the early morning trains.

Sunday was a busy day at the camp. The number of visitors present was greater than at any previous time, and at dinner the dining tent was crowded with town folks who had peretofore failed to sample the health foods as prepared by the Adventists, and had taken advantage of this last opportunity to investigate matters on heir own account.

The evening meeting on Sunday was also largely attended, the big tent being crowded to its utmost to accommodate the listeners.

On Saturday afternoon the members who have joined the faith were baptized. The place selected for this was down the river near the railroad bridge. There were about thirty-five of the converts who were dipped, and a large crowd of people who had heard of the affair congregated at the spot

Of the affair congregated at the spot to witness the proceedings.

During the last few days of the meeting the Adventists, reported that they had fully one thousand people in attendance, all of their tents being occupied, while a large number found accomodations about town by renting rooms, and attending the meetings during the day.

It is not known where the Adventists will hold their camp meeting next year, but should they decide to meet here again they will find the people of Grand Rapids ready to do all in their power to make it pleasant for them.

Knight, who was arrested some time ago on charge of selling liquor without a license, was brought before Justice Brown on Saturday and after listening to all the testimony in the case the judge found him guilty, fining him $50 and costs of the suit, in default, and costs of the suit, in default of payment of which he was to spend three months in the county

Knight comes from Dexterville and had been running a saloon there before the license was knocked out. It was claimed that Knight continued to sell whiskey, calling it orange cider, and that a man had taken a drink of this "orange cider," then and there lapsed into unconsciousness and had not come to until about noon the next day. Knight did not deny having liquor in the house, but claimed that it had been left over from the saloon business, and from his own testimony it was apparent that he was trying to drink it all up himself, and had only furnished his friends with an occasionalmp out of frendliness of spirit. Mr. Knight paid his fine on Mon day and was released from cuslody,

in the place before the first of July, but at the election this spring the people there voted no license. When this was done the defendant changed his place of business to a temperance house, and it was claimed by the complaint that he had continued to seil ntoxicants.

When the place was raided by the sheriff on the 5th of August, there was found a varied assortment of intoxicants in the place, but this the defendant claimed had been in the place before it was sold, and had not been removed.

The presence of a certain amount of booze found in the ice box was explained by the defendant claming that it was kept there for his own use, and that he had confined himself to the sale of "Malt Mead" and "St. Jacobs Bitters" both of which are claimed by the mamufacturers to be non-intoxi cating.

There were a large number of witnesses present, some of which were sure they had intoxicants to drink in the place and others who were sure they had drunk something, but were rather hazy as to what it had been. The case occupied two days.

Case Dismissed .- The case of the State of Wisconsin against Carl Madsen came up before Justice Getts again on Tuesday and after putting a day on the matter the jury disagreed again after which District Attorney Wipper man made a motion that the case be dismissed, which was done. This was field for business.

> Hunters Materializing.-During the past week the county clerk has been kept busy about all of his spare time issuing hunters' licenses, and the result is that up to Tuesday evening he had issued two hundred, and the indications were that up to tonight the number will be 250. Young men in quest of a license are urged to be very explicit as to what kind of a license they want, as this is about the time of year that the county clerk is time of year that the county there is apt to make the mistake of issuing a hunter's license when a marriage license is wanted, and it always causes embarrassment to turn up at a wedding with the wrong document in ine's pocket.

> Marriage Licenses .- The followng licenses to marry were issued by County Clerk Renne during the past week: John H. Reichert of Rock and ida Bach of the town of Richfield William Gorham and Ada L. Pinning both of the city of Pittsville. Emil Nacht and Angeline Schlig, both of Altdorf. Jacob Ruder and Anna Ader, both of Marshfield. Schumacher of Monroe and Jessie Sheriff of Marshfield. Wm. Tredeau of the town of Wood and Clara Kriesch of the city of Marshfield.

Potato Crop Good .- Farmers who nave raised potatoes this season report that the crop will be a good one. This condition of affairs seems to exist throughout the state and the indications are that prices will rule pretty generally low for this product. men seem to think, however. that the tubers will command a living price in spite of the good crop This is certainly to be hoped, as a good crop at 15 cents a bushel does the farmer or any one else very little

Hlegal Fishing.-Two young men were arrested last week in the vicinity of Knowlton and taken to Stevens Point, where they were fined ten dol-lars each for spearing fish. It might help the fishing in this vicinity in time if the law breakers hereabouts were

Will Build Mill.-Guy and James Nash have been in the northern part of the state during the greater part of the past week engaged in making preparations for erecting a sawmill for the Nash Lumber company, which will operate near Glidden. A new company has been organized, and the members are W. F. Vitas of Madison. T.E. Nash, Guy and James Nash of this city. The company has 35,000 acres of land in the northern part of the state which is covered with timber, which will be cut at the new mill.

Will Teach Housekeeping.-A branch for the teaching of housekeeping has been inaugurated in the public school at Wausan. Here a young lady sendor at wausan. Here a young rany can learn to do cooking, plain sewing, dressmaking, entting and fitting, laundering, furnishing of the house, purchasing supplies and caring for them, shome sanitation and decora-tion. Herefofore these branches have been perfected by practicing on the family, and the change should prove quite a benefit to mankind in general.

Johnny Get Your Gun. -The hunting season opens on Monday, and already that uneasiness is apparent in the air that precedes an event of this kind. Reports from various sections in this neighborhood are to the effect that there are not many prairie chickens this year, but more can be told about the malter when there have been a few trials in the field. The indications are that there will not be as many outsiders here as usual on such occassions.

Women May Vote.-Attorney General E. R. Hicks has rendered an opinion in which he holds that women have the right to vote for state and county superintendents of schools at the election next November. There has been considerable discussion on this subject all over the state, and a large number of inquiries regarding it have been made to both Secretary of State Froeblich and other state

Death of Leo Choppie. - Leo Choppie, a resident of Nekoosa, died at the home of N. J. Boucher on Friday last, after an illness of several weeks. Deceased was 17 years of age. Be had been sick with appendicitis, and was operated upon, but in spite of the efforts of the surgeons it was impossible to save his life. The funeral occurred at Nekoosa from the Catholic church.

The Convict's Daughter.—A large crowd gathered at the opera house on Tuesday evening to witness the production of the Convict's Daughter which is a five act drama with more or less pathos and a trifle of fun scattered through its make up. Several of the parts were well taken and the audience generally seemed to be well pleased with the production.

Broke His Wrist .- Louis, the nineyear-old son of B. Landry, broke his right wrist on Saturday by falling from the roof of a building and striking the ground some twenty feet below. The accident occurred at the riere & Pomainville marsh, where a new building was being erected.

Attended the Fair .- A large numher of our people went to Stevens Point this week to attend the Portage county fair. If the races and other attractions come up to what they have been advertised those who attend will be well paid for their time.

Will Shoot at Vesper .- The Grand Rapids gun club has received an invitation to participate in the blue rock contest which occurs at Vesper on Saturday next. It is probable that a number of the boys will go out.

Mr. Fred Koletzke, dealer in musical instruments and mouldings of 733 College avenue, Appleton, Wis., says: "Louis Holzer, shoeumker at Heckert's store, and Mr. Tony Van Ooyen, the llveryman, both friends of mine, induced me to use Doan's Kidney Pills. They had tried them and pronounced them up to their representations. I strained my back six years ago lifting a piano. It must have injured my kidneys, for trouble with these organs and rheumatism followed. I was lame and nened all over for several months. Then, hi a measure, it censed. A recurrence took place and I was confined to my bed for ten weeks. During the time I was attended by doctors and took all kinds of medicine, but grew worse instead of better. The pain in my back was exeruclating, the kidney secretions were dark and thick. Part of my body bloated and other parts were skin and bone. I could scarcely walk from one room to another; could not est and almost came to the conclusion that I was done for. Acting on the advice of my friends, I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Woelz Bros.' drug store and

MICROBES IN LETTUCE.

Fine Collection of Germs Found in Ordinary Salad by an Investigator.

There is really such a thing as getting too much for one's money, as, for instance, when one buys lettuce at 5 cents a banch and has a menagerie and a flower garden thrown in. Even the casual consumer of salads occasionally has a temporary loss of appetite from the discovery of a large white scale or small green worm among the crisp crinkles of his lettuce. But these discoveries are only a faint suggestion of the glories of animal life which lurk undeterted in those same inviting leaves. A man by the mame of Ceresole, having found more than the usual number of insects pasturing upon his plate of salad, went out into the market place and bought samples of lettuce, endive, radishes, colery and the like. The wily Ceresole washed his marketing in sterilized water and examined the sediment. A simple microscopical survey revealed a luxuriant, if not pleasing fanna of fifty-two species, comprising amochue and anguilhalae along with the eggs of the Toonra, Oxyuris axarides and Aukylosama. No content with these pleasing revelations, the curious Ceresole undertook a bacteriological investigation and added to his mevious discoveries a stance, when one buys lettuce at 5 cents pleasing revelations, the curious Ceresole undertook a bacteriological investigation and added to his previous discoveries a rich interagerie of microbes, bachading microrocci, staphylococci, streptococci, sarcinae. There were others; but why enlarge upon the matter? Enough is enough. When it is a question of 5 cents' worth of salad, the throwing in of a whole hear garden of microbes would seem to be too mach. And the moral of this is, you can't be too careful about washing your salads.—New York Sun,

At one of the life-saving stations they thought they would like to test the conditions of lifehout work, so, clothing themselves in bathing costumes and early jackets, they each took an oar in a lifehout, to the huge delight of the Turkish boatmen. One of the secretarles of the British embassy is never seen without an eyegluss, and is said even to thasis boanders. One of the secretaries of the British embassy is never seen without an eyeglass, and is said even to sleep with it. On this oreasion he was faithful to his glass, and soleomly embarked in a rork jacket and eyeglass. All the proper exercises were gone through, and finally the boat was capsized and righted again by its own crew. As they erept out from under the capsized load a howl of surprise came from the Turks, for the secretary's head appeared with the eyeglass firmly fixed in its proper position, its owner taking it as a matter of rourse that it should be there.—London Telegraph.

One of the women, probably accustomed to depend more upon others than upon her own resources, finding herself unprepared with the requisite item as the hour for the meeting approached, conceived the notion of calling up Dr. Blank, paster in another denomination. Six Months..... Grand Rapids, Wis., Aug. 27, 1902 A CRANBERRY IDYL. (A poem composed by "Patterson" a ditch digger, and read at the cranberry picnic last week at the Gaynor-Blackstone matsh meeting.) When the snow all disappears And the frost just leaves the ground, The season's work begins: So at it you are bound. Then you go and get your sod hook And your ditching knife, you know, For the dams may need repairing From the water's overflow. And a place that needs the work done Does not escape your eye For you say this water, it is precious, I may need it by and bye.

I may need it by and bye.

Some time in June you plant your vine

Be sure and get your proper bevel,

For the vines will not do well Unless they have the water level. You think your marsh in proper shape; They all say that it's boss; When you find you have an enemy, That everlasting moss; And you say I must get rid of that, Just as quickly as I can, Or else my neighbors all will say That I am a "high water" man. You watch the berries closely, As they begin to form; The water must not be too cold, It must not be too warm; And you think they'll stand the season And at last come out all right, If nothing further happens And they do not catch the blight, Some old fogie has said "A woman's work is never done," That a man has got a snap--He only works from sun to sun— But there are men before me here today Will prove that I am right; That when you run a cranberry marsh, You are at it day and night. For when you think you will have A good night's sleep, You roll over with a groan, Half asleep and half awake, You thought you heard the telephone, And when you have said your "hello," Did I hear that voice aright? "The flag was on the train today; There will be frost tonight." Then you jump into your overalls And your blood begins to boil, And you guille on your lantern That is always filled with oil. Then you look at the thermometer And you say "confound my pate; It was fifty two four hours ago And now it's twenty-eight." Then you pull out all your sluice boards, Away down to the floor, And you stand there a few moments, And you hear the water rour; Till at last your marsh is flooded, And you dance around with glee, And bid deliance to Jack Frost "You cannot injure me." Now, C. E. Lester sald to me, "Pat, you will have to get a wife, Or you will raise no berries; Not upon your life." So, I asked him for his reason. And he gave it to me right;
"You will need a crying baby
To keep you up all night." Now when convention day comes round. Some in rubber tired buggies To Gaynor's marsh And the experimental station. Some stand around and talk, They are as happy as you please, While some sit around on beaches, Beneath the big pine trees. And they listen to the secretary As he reads from his report. If the crop will be a full one Or if it will be short; And he'll tell you about old New Jersey, And all about the Early Black; How quick they get to market-

> And he'll tell about Cape Cod, That great report breaker How they raise 200 barrels to the acre. But when it comes to Wisconsin His reports are meager and small. He is trying to make you believe We raise no berries here at all. We've had men from Kansas City St. Paul and also Chi. They have looked the whole crop over, Perhaps they are going to buy. The railroads too, are represented. And they offer a rebate. They are holding out inducements; They are after all the freight. We have nearly every berry here That grows beneath the sun:

They are the cracker jack:

We have the old McFarland, And the Howe—a No. 1. Then, there is the Cherry, spotted like at egg, And also the Bugle—looks like a wooden peg: And the Nova Scotia--you can Eat them by the hour--Put I will tell you one thing, You will find them very sour. The Berlin is a dandy, And they ought to take the prize, They ripen up so even, And so uniform in size. The Metalic Bell is fine; Now, perhaps you think I'm bold When I say the vines cost twenty cents pan, And they're worth their weight in gold We must not pass the Jumbos They are of enormous size: Just take a look on Bennet's marsh, It will open up your eyes. We have the Elm Lake Rough Rider; In your mouth they'll almost melt; They look like a bucking bronco-Just the kind for Roosevelt. But with all these fancy berries That have vines like Virginia Creepers, Don't forget the Wisconsin Natives: For they beat them all for keepers. Now they are using them for medicine And the doctors all agree That they are far better than Rocky Mountain Tea.

And it will drive them out of business That's between me and you And they will have to take that sign down Of their Indian Kickapoo. And you may think it preposterous But still we heard it said. That they will bring the hair back

On any old tald head. Now they're good for men that's strong

And they're good for men that's weak And they're good for youthful maidens Twill put the bloom upon their cheek-And I'll guarantee you one thing, Ley will never leave a talut: They are better than your powder; Far better than your paint. Now they use them in the pavy Its no more than right they should, For Uncte Sam is on To everything that's good. They ship them to Alaska, You ask any doctor, nervy, If they aren't the best thing in the world To cure that awful scurvy. They're good for almost everything, Now, that's an open question.
They're good for teething babies,
And they're good for indigestion.
So I might laud their praises, Away up to the coiling, As they're good for all the mothers With that awful tired feeling. Now when it comes September, And cool weather does begin, And they hitch up horse and buggy And drive from town to town, And go out in the country,

And go for miles around, And they say, "I've got the best marsh, I know it can't be beat; You can stand in water all day long And never wet vour feet.

And my shanties are the best, I don't care what you say; And every night a place to sleep Upon the best of hay." You get the promise of a hundred; You think you'll get some more; But when you start to pick your berries You'll have about fifty-four. Then the crew all starts in; The berries are ripe and thick, And the boss, he comes along,

And pokes you with a stick; And when you took around. You think he's awful mean, Whenthe says, "Mr. man, Mr. man, You pick those berries clean." Just step into the hall some night, You'll see suits that're tallor made; And the style that you will see there 'il throw King Edward in the shade. The last dance is the ladies' choice; Now from the hall don't roam, For if a girl should choose you, That's a hint to take her home. Now your crop, it is all gathered,

And its piled up very high; They are put in bushel boxes, And they are left in there to dry; And soon the girls will come along; They think that they're in clover; And that they will get the job Of picking berries over. Then they talk about their lovers, Some are dandles on the fiddle And about the other fellows-Who part their hair Down through the middle.

And smid this din and prattle, The foreman shakes the barrells well, For the buyers say The berries should not ruttle. Then he puts on "Cultivated Cranberries

Grown by so and so,
Fourteen miles below Grand Rapids,
Where the best cranberries grow."
And he'll put on "Four Ex Pie berries, Einst the lead Finest in the land, Warranted not to shrink, And all climates they will stand."

There is a brand I think they call the That's for Thanksgiving dinner, And they make the best of sauce. Then there's another brand, Put up by Edward Kruger, "Stand your berries out to freeze, Don't take hulf the sugar.' Now if you've any tools That's completely gone to smash, And you know you must replace them, Just call on Larry Nush. He's a splendid man to deal with, Although sometimes rather queer; If you kick about the price, He'll throw in a keg of beer, Now when your berries are all sold And you think you're getting richer,

And you've any job work to do, Call on "Pat, the ditcher." He will dig your ditches crooked, Or else he'll dig them straight; He will fill out all your orders, If you have the time to wait. And your dams he'll lay up fine For he's loaded down with proof, He'll lay your sods double-jointed, Like the shingles on your roof; ind he'll take any k From a rod unto a mile, Or he'll ditch clean to Milwaukee, If you'll make it worth his while. So now my friends I've shown You of our life, From the spring until the fall; Bear with me a moment, For I have not told you all; And when it's in the winter, And the snow is on the land. We hitch up all our teams And hanl on lots of sand. Now I hope you've all enjoyed yourselves But as sure as I'm a sinner, I think the best part of all Was that grand convention dinner,

Mr. Arpin rode Mr. Krieger's motor cycle, and as the road was a trifle rocky he gave Mr. Krieger a tow, as that gentleman was on an ordinary wheel. This worked all right where the road was rough and they had to proceed slowly, but when they struck a smooth place where the motor cycle could open out the tow line parted and Mr. Krieger was left to paddle his own canoc. The motor seemed to have enough surplus power to draw two or three extra wheels.

A COMING SOCIAL EVENT.

Thos. J. Smith in his new play "The Game Keeper" will be attraction at the Grand opera house the 20th of September.

"The Game Keeper" is an Irish drama, but has been constructed on original lines with a touch of real American humor that is at all times refreshing. This accounts for the fact that it is one of the greatest successes of the stage for years. Everywhere it is greeted as a masterpiece of realism. Its story is interestingly told while the comedy that is inter-spersed in liberal quantity lends a brightness and cheerfulness that is all its own. Close attention has been paid to all the details and the production can be appropriately called com-plete in every respect.

Havana Journal Charges Cousul General Bragg with Scaring Investors Away from Cuba.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 23.—According to reports received here Gen. Edward S. Bragg of Ford dn Lac. Wis., is having a merry time as consul general to Cuba. In special correspondence of the Washington Post, the statement is made that Bragg has been charged in the pub-lic press of Harann with scaring away investors from Cuba, and Gen. Leonard Wood, former military governor of the island, with carrying off one of the steam yachts bought and paid for with funds taken from the island treasury.

The reference to Gen. Bragg is as

"The Havana Post yesterday made a venomous attack on the consul general, charging that instead of attending to his consular duties he is devoting a large part of his time to running down Cuba and the Cubans and trying to influence capitalists from the states not to invest their money here.

"Capitalists who came to Hayana re-capitalists who came to Itavaian re-cently from the states to invest in Cuban properties naturally consulted their con-sul general as one who should be well informed upon the situation and outbook, only to be discouraged by his gloomy views of the island and its people. awestricken tones that if they will only take the advice of a friend they will waste no time in getting out of the island and to take their money with them, not to invest it here.

"The new charge against Consul-General Bragg comes just when the Cuban press had ceased to refer to the Bragg incident, and the people of Havina, in social as well as political circles, were beginning to regard the criticisms were beginning to regard the criticisms attributed to the American consul general as matters unworthy of further discussion, either at the palace here or at the white house at Washington. The United States consul general himself, reassured by the failure, so far, either of the President or Secretary Hay, to take action upon the suggestion of the Wilkesburre, then Beage had made Wilkesburre, and the Washington of Cuban executive, that Bragg had made himself persona non grata to the new government of the republic of Cuba, had opened negotiations looking to the lease of a winter residence for himself and family in one of Havana's popular sub-urban resorts."

Will Not Interfere in Settling Coal Strike at Present Time.

NO STATEMENT TO MAKE

Wall Street Believes He Could End the Trouble by an Order if He So Desired.

New York, Aug. 23 .- J. Pierpont Mor gan has made it plain that he will not at this time take any measures toward the settlement of the coal strike. The banker's effice had been besieged by persons desirous of learning his attitude, for Wall street believes that notwithstanding the independent stand of the operators. Morgan could end the strike with an order if he so desired. He declined at first to talk on the subject at all, but just before closing hours he gave orders that the paper men should be admitted. "Well, what do you want to ask me?" he said in his usual blunt fushion when they came in they came in, "To you intend taking any hand in the strike?" he was first asked. strike? he was liest asked, "What action can I take? I am not the president of those roads. Why don't you leave the matter alone? Why don't you let them settle it between them?"

Reminded of Operators' Boast.

Mr. Morgan was reminded that the operators had boasted that they knew he would not interfere between them and the men. He was asked for an affirmation or denial of the report.

or denian of the report,?
"I shall not say anything on the sub-ject," he replied.
"Will you interfere?"
"I will not say that I will or will not."
Mr. Morgan was urged to make a state-ment of his purposes and views. He said:

said:
"I won't make any statement now. I don't think it is the proper time to make a statement. When the proper time arrives I may make one."
It will be recalled that the operators in 1900 obeyed Mr. Margan's suggestion to bring the strike to an end without a nummur. His homecoming was carerly anticipated because it was hoped that he would take similar action in the present instance.

Healers to Visit New York

Useless to Visit New York.

"There will be no conference between the coal road operators and Mitchell," said Treasurer Walker of the Delaware and Treasurer Walker of the Delaware & Hudson Coal Company when shown a Chicago dispatch saying that President Mitchell was on his way to this city to attend a meeting to be held in J. P. Morgan's office to end the strike.

"Mitchell is wasting car fare coming here," he continued. "We have nothing to arbitrate. Of course, as Mitchell says, he would be glad to meet any committee that has for its purpose the settlement of the strike. He has everything to gain and nothing to lose by such a course. He is heaten and he knows it. The strikers know it, and they are dissatisfied. I believe a majority of them want to go back to work right now."

SAYS SHE MUST AID FAMILY IN WISCONSIN

Mrs. Harris Hunter Arrested in New York for Begging-Said to Have Collected $50,000.

New York, Aug. 23.-The police have arrested a woman representing herself to be Mrs. Harris Hunter, the widow of a one-time incluber of the Chicago board a one-time member of the Chicago board of trade, on the technical charge of varancy and a magistrate has held the woman in $600 bail for examination. She is 50 years of age, slight of build, with gray hair and was dressed in deep mourning. Mrs. Hunter had tried to obtain inancial aid in hanking houses by saying that she had an invalid brether for whom she wished to huy an invalid's chair. It was discovered that for the past seven years a woman answering her description had been going the rounds of the prominent brokers' offices, officeting money upon one brokers' offices, collecting money upon one prevense or another. She invariably represented herself as the widow of a former president of the Chicago board of trade, it was said, and as having lost her money through various failures. It is alleged that she has traveled from San Francisco to New York, collecting money all the time, until, it is estimated, she has amassed at least $50,000.

Mrs. Hunter says of herself: "I come from Sheridan, Wis., where I have left a father SI years old, a son down with consumption and a daughter 14 years of age. I have been living in Brooklyn. The folks out West have no means of support so I set about securing aid for them. In receiving money from people in this city I have done no wrong."

you."
"Something to say to me? Of whom would you talk?" asked Carol, surprised. "Of Roger Darrel."

The three words went like an arrow the black eyes, quick to see the startled look of pain, took upon themselves a glow that one could easily imagine was satisfaction.

Carol saw this, and it served to give her a fictitions strength. She divined now that something terrible was about to be made munifest, and while her soul sickened with apprehension, she assumed a

"What would you tell me of Roger Darrel, girl?"

"Has it never occurred to you that grave, beloved?" this lover of yours has a secret? There is something in Roger Darrel's past that In the time to come you will see that will chill your blood with horror-a skeleton that he has tried to bury these years back, but which will not be kept under ground. Ah! he has deceived you, as he deceived me. Soft words blind the eyes. To you, he is all that is good and noble to me, all that is bad."
"What mean you? For heaven's sake, speak, girl, Don't you see I am stifling?" gasped Carol, one white hand clutching her perfect throat as though she was almost unable to breathe.

A wicked gleam came into the gypsy's

"Listen to me, then, daughter of the house dweller, and I will tell you of his infamy. All this Barbara Merriles can prove. The man you love, the man who has wood you with soft, honeyed words, and whom you believe to be the soul of honor-that man, Roger Darrel, has a wife living, shut up in a mad house."

Carol Richmond shrank back appalled, as those terrible words, uttered in a sibilant whisper by the gypsy girl, smote her ears. There was something so blood-curdling in their significance that her very heart seemed to cease beating, and lie like lead within her. She would have fullen, but for the support the tree gave ber.

As for Barbara Merriles, she stood there watching her victim with the remorseless gleam of a pililess tigress in her eyes. For fully a minute Carol was unable to say a word, for she was on the very verge of becoming insensible. The reaction came at last. Carol inherited some of the determined will of her sprung upon me unawares, and ruined father, and she recovered by degrees. It my life. The gypsy hag's curse has began to dawn upon her mind that there might be some mistake; her faith in her lover was great, and she could not be-lieve that he would be guilty of such a terrible thing as this of which the blackeyed girl accused him.

"It is false!" she cried; "how dare you tell me such a thing? You are either insune, or else malicious. What reason have you to hate Roger Darrel, that you should traduce him to me thas? How dare you, I say?"

"Dare!" cried the other. "You are not acquainted with the gypsy character, I see, or you would not ask such a question. There is nothing that Barbaga Merriles would not dare undertake, Hate Roger Darrel? Yes, I have cause to, but hate could never manufacture such a story. Do you want proof strong as holy writ? You can have it from your lover's lips. He will not dare deny the truth. Look him in the eyes and tell him you have heard the story of Nora Warner. Then mark well the pallor of his face, his shrinking eyes, his trembling form He will stand before you condemned,"

Turning, the strange creature was gone. The night was one long to be remenbered.

In the eastern sky the round moon walking in glory, lent bor silvery light to the world below, and myriads of twink-ling stars, mysterious lanterns of the night, were hung about to assist, in a feeble way, her brave effort,

Roger was walking slowly up and down with his arms behind him. Where his thoughts were could be easily guessed, and, therefore, what must have been his astonishment to see a slender, whiterobed figure standing in front of him.

"What, Carol, my darling, is it really you? Why are you here?' he asked, tenderly.

"I am here to learn the truth, Roger: where is Nora Warner?" she said, almost

She turned upon him then, her face pale and firm.

"There is but one way, Roger, Do not try to tempt me. Let me remember you as an honorable man. I am going now. No, do not try to kiss me; it can never be again. Think of me sometimes, my

"The curse of Cain must be upon me," he muttered, almost grouned, "I thought to live down that disgrace, but it has doomed me!"

CHAPTER III

How Carol reached the terrace she never knew, for it seemed to her she had just parted with Roger at the foot of the steps where she entered the broad hall, to be confronted by her father, who raught her wrist most fiercely.
"Come into the library, Carol," he said, with intense passion in his voice. Once the library door was closed, Lawence Richmond turned on her almost

This I have sworn, and in it I will not be thwarted."

"Spare your words, father. If I was of the same mind as yesterday, you would find that I possessed just as resolute a determination as you, but a higher power has seen lit to accomplish the work. This night Roger Darrel looked moved aside into the shadow, but not his last on my face. Never again will we meet, father, unless by accident; then it will be as strangers. The hand of fate has turned our lives apart, and through Nora Warner he is lost to me." "Nora Warner! That girl still alive?

"Why did we ever meet? Was it be cause heaven wished to punish a Darrel for that sin?"

While he still stood there, his thoughts busy, there came the sound of fastfalls, not light and full of grace, like Carol's, but heavy and firm-the tread of a man. Ere he could turn, some one tapped him on the shoulder, "A word with you, sir."

Wheeling, he found himself face to face with a dashing looking man. The moon's rays fell upon his figure, but the broad-brimmed hat shaded his face, so that only a general view could be obtained.

"You are at perfect liberty to say as many as you choose, sir," replied Roger. He had no idea who this man was or what he wanted, and in his present condition it was a matter of small importance to him. Captain Grant did not realize what a volcano he was arousing

The words were in the form of a question, and though the Virginian had started at first, he drew his form up proudly. "Taking it for granted that your conjecture is the truth, what business is that of yours, may I inquire?" he said, with some show of warmth.

"You are impudent, Roger Darrel. is my business in so far that Miss Richmond is my promised wife, and it behooves a man to see that her honor is not tarnished by claudestine meetings such as the one I have just witnessed." said the Captain in pompous tones.

"What you say I brand as an infamous falsehood, sir, whoever you may be." "For that I will call you to an account, Roger Darrel. In the meantime I wish to ask you a question in regard to this meeting. Was it a voluntary one on the part of Miss Richmond, or did you force her into making the assignation?"

When the Captain raised his handker chief to his face, he did so with his left hand, and no wonder Roger gave vent to an exclamation when he saw that it was incased in a black kid glove.

"You recognize me, then. I had not forgotten you, Roger Darrel, and the fact of our having once traveled in company will not prevent me from running my sword close to your heart."

Her "Petals."

To move a poet to compliment a beautiful waman does not seem to be a difficult task. To move a Quaker to compliment the pretty gown of a pretty girl is a different matter. It was rarely indeed that compliments of either kind were extracted from the poet of the Friends. Whittier, who, with all his keen appreciation of beauty, retained a Quakerly preference for simplicity in attire, and a Quakerly shyness and reluctance to indulge in personal praise.

Nevertheless, it was recently related of him that once, scated on the piazza of a summer cottage, he was a silent listener to a discussion by a group of ladies of the costume worn by a girl who was crossing the lawn not far away.

She had but just returned from abroad, and wore one of her new Paris gowns-one of those apparently simple "creations," which to the knowing feminine eye are complex indeed. Many were the comments and admiring remarks upon its elegance and style as she floated past among the greenery in gauzy cloud of rose and faint blue.

At length, to close the conversation, one of the ladies langidingly appealed to Mr. Whittier for his opinion; adding, however, that she supposed he would disdain to have one on such a matter.
"No," said the poet, looking benevolently after the radiant young beauty; and with a poetical reference to the flower-like face, he added. "Truly I think that young lady's petals are exquisitely fringed and tinted."

Coops for Young Chicks.

When the early-hatched chicks are two or three months old it is a good plan to go over the flock and take out such pullets as are promising and which will form the laying flock of the winler. Such chicks must be separated from the main flock, so that they may be given the need attention, and must be provided with shelter at night, even though they have the range during the day. Coops like that shown in the lilustration are inexpensive, as they are formed from large dry goods boxes. Saw the back of a box so that a slauting roof may be nailed on and be covered with tarred paper to make it waterproof.

The door is hinged to the box and the illustration shows how it is hooked up during the day when the chicks are out. The three auger holes of good size just above the door provide ventilation, although at one side is an opening to permit fresh air in the coop while the weather is warm, this opening to be se curely covered with heavy wire netting of rather fine mesh. If for any reason It is desirable to confine the bluls for any portion of the day, they will be quite comfortable if a water can is placed inside the coop, as shown in Figure 1, and it is secured at either side by a loop of wire to a screw, so that it cannot be Apped over. The water may be poured into the can from The outside, through the wire netting, The small food frough, shown at Figure 3, is so simple anyone can make It. Remedy for Gapes.

Gapes are usually due to fifth, the eating of the residuum of food previously given and feeding in damp places. It is believed that they are propagated in corn for fodder. As corn has been so earthworms, but facts have been discovered substantiating this claim. The best remedy for gapes, if the chicks will eat, is to add a teaspoonful of spirits of turpentine to a mixture of one pint of corn meal and a half plut of middlings, says an exchange. Thoroughly incorporate the turpentine with the dry material, then scald as much of the material as may be required and feed to the chicks on a clean board. Tut ten drops of carbolic acid in every pint of drinking water and change the water frequently every day. There is no sure remedy for gapes, and inserting feather tips into the windpipe to draw out the gape worms can be done only by an experienced person. There are suggested remedies, but they are sometimes as fatal to the chicks as the gapes.

The Runt Pig.

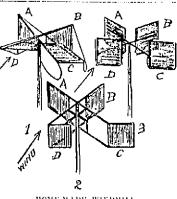

We have heard people say that a runt pig was not worth raising, and it would be better to kill it at birth. This may be true where the litter is a large one, but if the sow has milk enough for it and the others it costs but little to raise it to weaning time. Then take it from the others, that they may not crowd it at the trough or in the sleeping quarters, and feed it regularly to fatten quickly. It will never eat a very large amount or make a very large hog. but if healthy it will fatten quickly and soon be almost as broad as it is long. The cheapest and best perk we ever made was a runt pig that we killed when it weighed a little less than 159 pounds, so fat that he would not stand up long enough to eat. We never heard it squeal for food,-American Cultivator.

The same principle is found in Figures 2 and 3. These wings are so constructed as to become pendulous and mirestrained when returning against the wind, to be caught rigid when the wind acts upon them so as to obtain power."

Soil for Small Fruits.

It is almost impossible to do the work of preparing the soil for small fruits too thoroughly, and this is particularly the case with strawberry plants. Much of this preparatory work may be done in the late summer and fall as soon as the crop now occupying the soil is removed. Fertlizers should be applied, the sail should be plowed and theroughly harrowed and covered with a crop of some kind that may be plowed under in the early spring.

After such crop is plowed under the soil should be harrowed several times to put it in the best possible condition before setting the plants. If one has a strip of ground that can be used for the purpose at this time it will be found a good plan to set out a number of yaricties of strawberry plants now, using the pot-grown plants that are offered by plantsmen at this season. These vhile they are quite inexpensive there is no cheaper way of having a test bed.

When closed together, fasten hook about one foot from lower end. Use a pair of hinges to fasten sticks to the stave, and, taking a strap 34-3 feet long, with one end fasten to stick as shown. Miss Celia Vadnais, a graduate of the Catholic school at Rudolph, will begin to teach Sept. I in District No. 1. She holds two second grade certi-ficates of high standing. In Portage county she passed for the first grade in all but geometry. There are many young lady graduates of the Catholic school here doing very successful work in teaching, in fact they get schools as soon as they get certificates but Miss Vadnais is the youngest, being only 16 years of age. Miss Almira Blair also got certificates lately from two counties. Many more of the graduates are engaged in useful occupations in other lines.

On Friday the nine year old daughter of Nic Marceau met with an accident that came near proving fatal. The child was working about the stove when her dress caught fire, and before the flames had been extinguished she had been burned severely about the arms and side. There were no grown folks at the house at the time, but some of the children present had the presence of mind to throw water on the flames and extinguish them before they had gained sufficient headway to burn the child fatally. As it is her burns will lay her up for some little

LYNCH ENDORSED FOR SENATOR

An Enthusiastic Meeting Held at Marshfield Monday.—Delegates Named to State Convention.

The democratic convention for the purpose of electing delegates to the state, senatorial and congressional conventions was held at Marshfield on Monday afternoon, and the meeting turned out to be an enthusiastic

The meeting was called to order by L. M. Nash, chairman of the demotheir reports the delegates proceeded to business.

The delegates elected to attend the state convention were W.E. Wheelan, T. E. Nash. Edward Lynch of Grand Rapids, C. S. Sheerin, H. A. Lathrop and John P. Hume of Marshfield, A. E. Germer of Dexterville and H. E. Fitch of Nekoosa.

The delegates for congressional convention were E. C. Hors and A. G. Pankow of Marshfield, L. E. Colvin of Pittsville and E. C. Rossier and Will Gross of Grand Rapids.

The delegates to the senatorial convention were Wm. Hirth of Marshfield, L. M. Nash and E. P. Arpin of Grand Rapids, Jas. K. P. Hiles of Dexterville, and E. W. Morrison of Rapids! Babcock.

The democrats of Wood county never felt surer of victory than they do this fall, and seem determined to make an active campaign from start to finish. Should a good set of men be nominated this fall on the county ticket, it is the consensus of opinion both among republicans and democrats that a part, and possibly, the whole of the ticket will be elected.

Advents Break Camp.

The last of the camp meeting occurred in this city on Sunday evening, and immediately thereafter there were a great many of the campers busy packing their effects so as to be ready for the early morning trains. Sunday was a busy day at the camp. The number of visitors present was greater than at any previous time. and at dinner the dining tent was crowded with town folks who had heretofore failed to sample the health foods as prepared by the Adventists, and had taken advantage of this last opportunity to investigate matters on their own account.

The evening meeting on Sunday was also largely attended, the big tent being crowded to its utmost to accommodate the listeners.

On Saturday afternoon the members who have joined the faith were baptized. The place selected for this was down the river near the railroad bridge. There were about thirty-five of the converts who were dipped, and a large crowd of people who had heard of the affair congregated at the spot to witness the proceedings.

During the last few days of the meeting the Adventists reported that they had fully one thousand people in attendance, all of their tents being occupied, while a large number found accomodations about town by renting rooms, and attending the meetings during the day.

It is not known where the Advent ists will hold their camp meeting next year, but should they decide to meet here again they will find the people of Grand Rapids ready to do all in their power to make it pleasant for

igainst Wm. Mongan came up before Justice Getts on Thursday, being be-fore a jury, and the defendant in the action was acquitted. The action was for having sold intoxicating liquors without a license in the town of Dexter, or what is known as the village of Dexterville. Mongan had been running a saloon in the place before the first of July, but at the election this spring the people there voted no license. When this was done the defendant changed his place of business to a temperance house, and it was claimed by the complaint that he had continued to sell ntoxicants.

When the place was raided by the sheriff on the 5th of August, there was found a yaried assortment of intoxicants in the place, but this the defendant claimed had been in the place before it was sold, and had not been removed.

> There were a large number of witnesses present, some of which were sure they had intoxicants to drink n the place and others who were sure they had drunk something, but were rather hazy as to what it had been. The case occupied two days.

Case Dismissed.—The case of the State of Wisconsin against Carl Madsen came up before Justice Getts again on Tuesday and after putting a day on the matter the jury disagreed again, after which District Attorney Wipperman made a motion that the case be dismissed, which was done. This was the second trial of the case, the jury having disagreed before. The case was a charge brought by Carl Miller for assault and battery, the complaining witness having received a clout on the head during the festivities following a ; wedding held in the town of Seneca some time ago. One man had already pleaded guilty to the charge of assault and battery and paid his

Hunters Materializing .- During the past week the county clerk has been kept busy about all of his spare time issuing hunters liceuses, and the result is that up to Tuesday evening he had issued two hundred, and the indications were that up to tonight the number will be 250. Young men in quest of a liceuse are urged to be very explicit as to what kind of a license they want, as this is about the time of year that the county clerk is apt to make the mistake of issuing a hunter's license when a marriage license is wanted, and it always causes embarrassment to turn up at a wedding with the wrong document in one's pocket.

Marriage Licenses.-The followng licenses to marry were issued by County Clerk Renne during the past week: John H. Reichert of Rock and Ida Bach of the town of Richfield. William Gorham and Ada L. Pinning, both of the city of Pittsville. Emil Nacht and Angeline Schlig, both of Altdorf. Jacob Ruder and Anna Adier, both of Marshfield. Henry λ . Schumacher of Monroe and Jessie Sheriff of Marshfield. Wm. Tredeau of the town of Wood and Clara Kriesch of the city of Marshfield.

Potato Crop Good .- Farmers who ave raised potatoes this season report hat the crop will be a good one. This condition of affairs seems to exist throughout the state and the indications are that prices will rule pretty generally low for this product. Potato men seem to think, however, that the tubers will command a living price in spite of the good crop. This is certainly to be hoped, as a good crop at 15 cents a bushel does the farmer or any one else very little Illegal Fishing .- Two young men were arrested last week in the vicinity lars each for spearing fish. It might —John Dengler's Capital for 5 cents treated similarly who are in the habit Try them yourself. Only 55c at John of fishing in this manner.

Will Build Mill .- Guy and James Nash have been in the northern part of the state during the greater part of the past week engaged in making preparations for erecting a sawmill for the Nash Lumber company, which will operate near Glidden. A new company has been organized, and the members are W. F. Vilas of Madison. T.E.Nash, Gny and James Nash of this city. The company has 35,000 acres of land in the northern part of the state which is covered with timber, which will be cut at the new mill.

Will Teach Housekeeping .- A branch for the teaching of housekeeping has been inaugurated in the public school at Wausau. Here a young lady can learn to do cooking, plain sewing, dressmaking, cutting and fitting, laundering, furnishing of the house, purchasing, supplies and caring for hem, thome sanitation and decoration. Heretofore these branches have been perfected by practicing on the family, and the change should prove quite a benefit to mankind in general.

Johnny Get Your Gun. -The hanting season opens on Monday, and already that uneasiness is apparent in the air that precedes an event of this kind. Reports from various sections in this neighborhood are to the effect that there are not many prairie chickens this year, but more can be told about the matter when there have been a few trials in the field. The indications are that there will not be as many outsiders here as usual on such occassions.

Picnicked Up River.—A party consisting of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. La Vigne, Mrs. E. C. Rossier, Geo. B. McMillan, Misses Anna McMillan, Kate McKercher, Belie Voyer, May Warner of Appleton, Jennie Whitney of Sherry, Georgia Kellogg. Cora Fancher of Racine, and Edgar Kellogg spent Thursday and Friday up river at the Rocky Run Rod and Reel Club house, and report a very pleasant two days of recreation.

Women May Vore .- Attorney General E. R. Hicks has rendered an opinion in which he holds that women have the right to vote for state and county superintendents of schools at the election next November. There has been considerable discussion on this subject all over the state, and a large number of inquiries regarding it have been made to both Secretary of State Froehlich and other state officers.

The Convict's Daughter .- A large crowd gathered at the opera house on Tuesday evening to witness the production of the Convict's Daughter which is a five act drama with more or less pathos and a trifle of fun scattered through its make up. Several of the parts were well taken and the audience generally seemed to be well pleased with the production.

Broke His Wrist .- Louis, the nineyear-old son of B. Landry, broke his right wrist on Saturday by falling from the roof of a building and striking the ground some twenty feet below. The accident occurred at the Briere & Pomainville marsh, where a new building was being erected.

Attended the Fair .-- A large number of our people went to Stevens Point this week to attend the Portage county fair. If the races and other attractions come up to what they have been advertised those who attend will be well paid for their time.

Will Shoot at Vesper .- The Grand Rapids gun club has received an invitation to participate in the blue rock contest which occurs at Vesper on Saturday next. It is probable that a number of the boys will go out.

Gun Club Scores.

The gun club held their last shoot for the season at their grounds on Sunday afternoon, there being three events. The scores were not as good on an avarage as they are in the habit of doing. Following were the scores

First event, 25 birds: Scott 17. Mason 21, Gardner S. Young 18, Drumb 15, Mosher 22, Kellogg 12, Nash 15, Bartholomew S. Second event, 25 birds: Drumb 21,

CANNOT COLLECT BILLS IN THIS STATE

Illinois Company Failed to File Papers with Secretary of State at Madison. Racine, Wis., Aug. 23.-[Special.]-By a decision of Judge Smieding in the municipal court today all of the contracts made by the Standard Manufacturing Company of Decatur, Ill., with Wisconsin firms are void. Several months ago agents of the company were sent through the state selling perfumes and flavoring extracts to grocers. The local grocers signed contracts for $2000 worth of the goods. They claimed that they agreed, however, to pay the manufacturing company when they sold the goods. The Standard people claimed, however, that the local merchants agreed to pay in instailments beginning the first month after the goods were delivered. The judge held that as the Illinois company had filed no papers with the secretary of state that the company could not force collection in Wisconsin. The Standard

LAUNDRIES ARE BOYCOTTED. Green Bay Union Men Have Washing Done at Appleton.

Green Bay, Wis., Aug. 21.-[Special.] -At the regular meeting of the trades council held in this city this evening steps were taken to prolong the boycott of two laundries in this city. As there is at present no union laundry organization in the city of Appleton, it was deemed wise by the local tradesmen to establish one. It was at first planned to have the work done at Oshkosh, but the distance proved a barrier. Since placing the local laundries on the unfair list the establishment conducted by the Sisters of Good Shepard has received more work than can be turned out, consequently laundered articles are luxuries among the union men.

P. R. Fox is attending him.

A special dispatch to the New York Times from Port Jervis says: Col. John H. Lord, for thirty years a recluse, died at Rio, a mountain settlement ten miles west of here, recently, at the age of 85 years. He was born at Rome, N. Y., and became a protege of the well-known civil engineer, John B. Jarvis, after whom Port Jarvis was named, and assisted him in the construction of the Croton aqueduct, New York city.

Nearly fifty years ago Col Lord's family was among the most prominent in northeastern politics, and he exercised a tremendous power in the policy of the Keystone state. He was a member of the Pennsylvania militia, and belonged to Gov. W. F. Packer's staff. At the time his brother, Russell F. Lord, was at the head of the management of the now abandoned Delaware and Hudson canal, Col. Lord was his lientenant and next to him in authority. He was an uncle by marriage of President Benjamin Harrison's first wife and a blood uncle of his widow.

Some eighty years ago a-bank was established in Honesdale, Pa., tand John Neal was its first cushier. He had a daughter who afterward became the wife of Col. Lord. Mrs. Neil's sister was the wife of Rev. Dr. Scott, professor in Washington College, Washington, Pa., and they had two daughters, Carrie and Elizabeth. They visited their aunt, Mrs. John F. Lord in Honesdale, and one of them, Lizzie, eventually married Russell F. Lord, who had become a widower and was several years her senior. The other sister was visited in Honesdale by President Harrison, then a young Indiana lawer, and their acquaintance ripened into marriage. Mr. and Mrs. Russell Lord had a daughter, who is now the widow of President Harrison and niece of his first wife.

After the Civil war the Lords lost their prestige and the deceased became irregular in his habits and finally lost his wealth. For a number of years he worked at old jobs at the late Winthrop W. Gilman's funnery in Sullivan county, and in lumber mills, and suddenly disappeared from his family and lived apart from his fellow man in an isolated cabin on the mountains west of here. A few years ago the cabin was burned and Col. Lord resided with residents of Rio. He is survived by one son, a wealthy retired merchant of Philadelphia, whose repeated offers of a home to his father were refused. Chance visitors to his cabin found it well sup-plied with books and were surprised at his extensive knowledge.

They had tried them and pronounced them up to their representations. I strained my back six years ago lifting a piano. It must have injured my kidneys, for trouble with these organs and rheumatism followed. I was lame and ached all over for several months. Then, in a measure, it censed. A recurrence took place and I was confined to my bed for ten weeks. During the time I was attended by doctors and took all kinds were dark and thick. MICROBES IN LETTUCE.

Fine Collection of Germs Found in Ordinary Salad by an Investigator.

There is really such a thing as getting too much for one's money, as, for instance, when one buys lettuce at 5 cents a bunch and has a menagerie and a flower garden thrown in. Even the casual con-sumer of salads occasionally has a tem-porary loss of appetite from the discorers of a large white scale or small green worm among the crisp crinkles of his let-tuce. But these discoveries are only a faint suggestion of the giories of animai life which lurk undetected in those same inviting leaves. A man by the name of Ceresole, having found more than the Ceresole, having found more than the usual number of insects passuring upon his place of salad, went out into the market place and bought samples of lettuce, eadive, radishes, celery and the like. The wily ('eresole washed his marketing in sterilized water and examined the sediment. A simple microscopical survey revealed a luxuriant. If not pleasing, fauna of fifty-two species, comprising amoebae and anguillaine along with the eggs of the Toenia. Ozyuris axarlies and Aukylostoma. Not content with these pleasing revelations, the curious Ceresole undertook a bacteriological investigation undertook a bacteriological investigation and added to his previous discoveries a rich menagerie of microbes, including micrococci, staphylococci, streptococci, sarcinae. There were others: but why enlarge upon the matter? Enough is enough. When it is a question of others worth of salad, the throwing in of a whole hear carrier of microbes would a whole bear garden of microbes would seem to be too much. And the moral of this is, you can't be too careful about washing your salads.—New York Sun.

A Wonderful Feat.

Recently a party from the embassies at Constantinople went to inspect the international lifeboat service on the Black sen coast. At one of the life-saving stations they thought they would like to test the conditions of lifeboat work, so, clothing themselves in bathing costumes and cork jackets, they each took an oar in a lifeboat, to the huge delight of the Turkish boatmen. One of the secreta-ries of the British embassy is never seen without an eyegiass, and is said even to sleep with it. On this occasion he was faithful to his glass, and solemnly embarked in a cork jacket and eyeglass. All the proper exercises were gone through, and finally the boat was capsized and righted again by its own crew. As they crept out from under the capsized hoat a howl of surprise came from the Turks, for the secretary's head appeared with the eyeglass firmly fixed in its proper position, its owner taking it as a matter of course that it should be there.—London Telegraph,

A CRANBERRY IDYL.

(A poem composed by "Patterson" a ditch digger, and read at the cranberry piccuc last week at the Gavnor-Blackstone marsh meeting.)

When the snow all disappears And the frost just leaves the ground, The season's work begins: So at it you are bound. Then you go and get your sod hook And your ditching knife, you know, For the dams may need repairing From the water's overdow.

And a place that needs the work done Does not escape your eve For you say this water, it is precious, I may need it by and bye. Some time in June you plant your vines Be sure and get your proper bevel, For the vines will not do well Unless they have the water level. You think your marsh in proper shape: They all say that it's boss: When you find you have an enemy, That everlasting moss: And you say I must get rid of that,

Just as quickly as I can, Or else my neighbors all will say That I am a "high water" man. You watch the berries closely, As they begin to form: The water must not be too cold. It must not be too warm: And you think they'll stand the season And at last come out all right. If nothing further happens And they do not catch the blight. Some old fogie has said

"A woman's work is never done,"

That a man has got a snap-

He only works from sun to sun-But there are men before me here today Will prove that I am right: That when you run a cranberry marsh, You are at it day and night. For when you think you will have A good night's sleep, You roll over with a groan, Half asleep and half awake.

You thought you heard the telephone, And when you have said your "hello," Did I hear that voice aright? "The flag was on the train today; There will be frost tonight." Then you jump into your overalls. And your blood begins to boil,

Then you look at the thermometer And you say "confound my pate; It was fifty-two four hours ago And now it's twenty-eight." Then you pull out all your sluice boards, Away down to the floor, And you stand there a few moments, And you hear the water roar: Till at last your marsh is flooded, And you dance around with glee, And bid defiance to Jack Frost

And you gaffle on your lantern

That is always filled with oil.

"You cannot injure me." Now, C. E. Lester said to me, "Pat, you will have to get a wife, Or you will raise no berries; Not upon your life." So, I asked him for his reason, And he gave it to me right: "You will need a crying baby To keep you up all night." Now when convention day comes round, They come from all creation: Some in rubber tired buggies

To Gaynor's marsh And the experimental station. Some stand around and talk, They are as happy as you please, While some sit around on benches, Beneath the big pine trees.

And they listen to the secretary As he reads from his report. If the crop will be a full one Or if it will be short: And he'll tell you about old New Jersey And all about the Early Black: How quick they get to market-They are the cracker jack: And he'll tell abour Cape Cod. That great record breaker, How they raise 200 barrels to the acre. But when it comes to Wisconsin His reports are meager and small.

He is trying to make you believe We raise no berries here at all. We've had men from Kansas City St. Paul and also Chi. They have looked the whole crop over, Perhaps they are going to buy.

The railroads too, are represented, And they offer a rebate. They are holding out inducements: They are after all the freight. We have nearly every berry here That grows beneath the sun; We have the old McFarland. And the Howe-a No. 1.

And also the Bugle-looks like a wooden peg: And the Nova Scotia—you can

Then, there is the Cherry, spotted like an

Eat them by the hour-Put I will tell you one thing, You will find them very sour. The Berlin is a dandy. And they ought to take the prize. They ripen up so even,

And so uniform in size. The Metalic Bell is tine: Now, perhaps you think I'm bold When I say the vines cost twenty cents:

And they're worth their weight in gold. We must not pass the Jumbos They are of enormous size: Just take a look on Bennet's marsh. It will open up your eyes. We have the Elm Lake Rough Rider: In your mouth they'll almost melt; They look like a bucking bronco-Just the kind for Roosevelt.

But with all these fancy berries That have vines like Virginia Creepers. Don't forget the Wisconsin Natives: For they beat them all for keepers. Now they are using them for medicine

And the doctors all agree That they are far better than Rocky Mountain Tea. And it will drive them out of business That's between me and you And they will have to take that sign down

Of their Indian Kickapoo. And you may think it preposterous But still we heard it said That they will bring the hair back

On any old bald head. Now they're good for men that's strong

Grand Rapids Tribune And they're good for men that's weak And they're good for youthful maidens—'Twill put the bloom upon their cheek— And I'll guarantee you one thing, They will never leave a taint; They are better than your powder; Far better than your paint. Now they use them in the navy Its no more than right they should, For Uncte Sam is on To everything that's good. They ship them to Alaska, You ask any doctor, nervy. If they aren't the best thing in the world To cure that awful scurvy. They're good for almost everything. Now, that's an open question. They're good for teething babies, And they're good for indigestion. So I might laud their praises, Away up to the ceiling. As they're good for all the mothers With that awful tired feeling. Now when it comes September, And cool weather does begin, They hustle after pickers: They must get their berries in. And they hitch up horse and buggy And drive from town to town. And go out in the country, And go for miles around. And they say, "I've got the best marsh, I know it can't be beat:

You can stand in water all day long

And never wet your feet.

I don't care what you say:

And my shanties are the best,

And every night a place to sleep

Upon the best of hay." You get the promise of a hundred; You think you'll get some more: But when you start to pick your berries You'll have about fifty-four. Then the crew all starts in: The berries are ripe and thick, And the boss, he comes along, And pokes you with a stick; And when you look around, You think he's awful mean, When he says, "Mr. man, Mr. man, You pick those berries clean." Just step into the hall some night, You'll see suits that're tailor made; And the style that you will see there, Il throw King Edward in the shade. The last dance is the ladies' choice; Now from the hall don't roam. For if a girl should choose you, That's a hint to take her home. Now your crop, it is all gathered, And its piled up very high: They are put in bushel boxes. And they are left in there to dry: And soon the girls will come along: They think that they're in clover; And that they will get the job Of picking berries over. Then they talk about their lovers, Some are dandies on the fiddle And about the other fellows-Who part their hair Down through the middle. And amid this din and prattle, The foreman shakes the barrells well, For the buyers say The berfies should not rattle. Then he puts on "Cultivated Cranberries Grown by so and so, Fourteen miles below Grand Rapids, Where the best cranberries grow. And he'll put on "Four Ex Pie berries, Warranted not to shrink, And all climates they will stand." There is a brand I think they call the "Boss" That's for Thanksgiving dinner. And they make the best of sauce. Then there's another brand, Put up by Edward Kruger, "Stand your berries out to freeze, That's completely gone to smash, Don't take half the sugar." Now if you've any tools And you know you must replace them, Just call on Larry Nash. He's a splendid man to deal with, Although sometimes rather queer: If you kick about the price, He'll throw in a keg of beer. Now when your berries are all sold And you think you're getting richer, And you've any job work to do, Call on "Pat, the ditcher." He will dig your ditches crooked. Or else he'll dig them straight: He will fill out all your orders, If you have the time to wait. And your dams he'll lay up tine For he's loaded down with proof. He'll lay your sods double-jointed, Like the shingles on your roof; And he'll take any kind of a job From a rod unto a mile. Or he'll ditch clean to Milwaukee. If you'll make it worth his while. So now my friends I ve shown You of our life. From the spring until the fall; Bear with me a moment. For I have not told you all: And when it's in the winter, And the snow is on the land, We hitch up all our teams And hanl on lots of sand. Now I hope you've all enjoyed yourselves. But as sure as I'm a sinner. I think the best part of all Was that grand convention dinner. To the ladies : f this association, Who have worked so hard today. To try and entertain us, While we've been like kids at play.

I do move you Mr. President, We lay aside our pranks. And one and all Unite in giving them.

Merrill Star: Eddie Harding of Grand Rapids, who is visiting his uncle and aunt, O. J. Gagnon and wife, was much surprised on Tuesday evening, when five couples of his young friends marched in. They played games, ate ice cream and cake, and had a good time.-Mrs. A. H. Barr and daughter came up from Grand Rapids, last Friday night. They will go to housekeeping as soon as they can find a desirable house.

Gerald Fritzsinger is in receipt of a long letter from his friend Gus Closuit, who has been in the Philippines, but is now stationed at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, which gives a very good description of affairs as they exist over on the island, and as to what has been accomplished since the Americans took hold of things over there. Lack of space prevents us publishing the entire letter, which might be interesting reading to a great number.

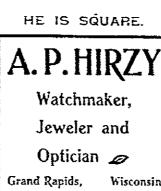

Dan Keenan of Hansen was in the city on Monday on a shopping tour and also to have a visit with his friends. Dan reports that he killed a wolf last week in his field, and as the wolf bad killed one of his sheep the day before, he naturally was glad to get rid of the beast. As there is a bounty of ten dollars on a wolf he will be able to play even on the deal. Mr. Keenan reports very few prairie chickens out his way this fall, where some years ago there was an abun-

The Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the First Congregational church will hlod their annual Thankoffering meeting at the home of Mrs. E. B. Rossier next Tuesday afternoon. Sept. 2, to which everybody is most cordially invited. All members in possession of "mite boxes" will please remember to bring them. It is the wish of the officers that all those who are acting as "months," "weeks" or "days" will report and remit the pledged amount at this meeting.

J. B. Arpin and George Krieger were out on the cranberry marsh of Mr. Arpin last week. Mr. Arpin rode Mr. Krieger's motor cycle, and as the road was a trifle rocky he gave Mr. Krieger a tow, as that gentleman was on an ordinary wheel. This worked all right where the road was rough and they had to proceed slowly, but when they struck a smooth place where the motor cycle could open out the tow line parted and Mr. Krieger was left to paddle his own canoe. The motor seemed to have enough surplus power to draw two or three extra wheels.

A COMING SOCIAL EVENT.

"The Game Keeper" is an Irish drama, but has been constructed on original lines with a touch of real American humor that is at all times cesses of the stage for years. Everywhere it is greeted as a masterpiece of realism. Its story is interestingly told while the comedy that is interspersed in liberal quantity lends a brightness and cheerfulness that is all its own. Close attention has been paid to all the details and the produc-tion can be appropriately called com. plete in every respect.

Greene's infallible Liniment has often proved "a friend indeed" to the boys in blue. For Sprained Joints or Sore Muscles and every description of Cuts, Wounds, Burns, Scalds, Sore Feet or Strained Tendons it is just what its name implies—infallible.

In cases of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica and Lumbago it affords instant relief. As an emergency remedy for all the burts of childhood and daily life it is unequalled, and all prudent mothers and housewives keep it handy. It is a powerful antiseptic and blood poisoning is impossible under its use.

Mr. Judd E. Bisbey, Chicago, says: "I have kept your liniment in my house. It has in all instances proven satisfactory to my family and myself."

Price 25c., 50c. and $1.00 per bottle. If your druggist cannot supply you, the makers, J. W. Greene & Co. Chicago, will, to prove its worth, send a large free sample in return for this Ad. and 10c. to cover cost of mailing. There is

Havana Journal Charges Consul General Bragg with Scaring Investors Away from Cuba.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 23.-According to reports received here Gen. Edward S. Bragg of Fond du Lac, Wis., is having a merry time as coasul general to Cuba. In special correspondence of the Washington Post, the statement is made that Brigg has been charged in the pub-lic press of Havana with scaring away investors from Cuica, and Gen. Leonard Wood, former military governor-of the island, with carrying off one of th-steam yachts bought and paid for with funds taken from the island treasury. The reference to Gen. Bragg is as follows:

"The Havana Post yesterday made a venomous attack on the consul general. charging that instead of attending to his consular duties he is devoting a large part of his time to running down Cuba and the Cubans and trying to influence capitalists from the states not to invest their money here.

"Capitalists who came to Havana recently from the states to-invest in Cuban properties naturally consulted their coninformed upon the situation and outlook, only to be discouraged by his gloomy views of the island and its people. The investors asked for data as to the lands, land titles, crops and material resources of Cuba only to be told by the consul in awestricken tones that if they will only take the advice of a friend they will waste no time in getting out of the island and to take their money with them, not to invest it here.

"The new charge against Consul-General Bragg comes just when the Cuban press had ceased to refer to the Bragg incident, and the people of Havana, in social as well as political circles, were beginning to regard the criticisms attributed to the American consul general as matters unworthy of further discussion, either at the palace here or at | the white house at Washington. The United States consul general himself. reassured by the failure, so far, either of the President or Secretary Hay, to take action upon the suggestion of the Cuban executive, that Bragg had made himself persona non grata to the new government of the republic of Cuba. had epened negotiations looking to the lease of a winter residence for himself and family in one of Havana's popular sub-urban resorts."

Wisconsin Senator Cannot Accept Know's Invitation to Investigate the Panama Canal Case.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 23.-Attorney General Knox returned to the city today from his vacation spent principally at Atlantic City. He will remain, however, only until Monday, when he will leave New York, preparatory to sailing for Paris next Wednesday on the Oceanic. He had hoped that this trip to France might be avoided but Mr. Russell, who is now there investigating the Panama canal question for this government, has cabled Mr. Knox that there are some features of the case that in his orinion should receive the attorney general's personal attention. As to what these matters are Mr. Knox has no information Senator Spooner, who conditionally had accepted the attorney general's invitation to accompany him to Paris, finds now that he will not be able to do so. In speaking of the railroad merger suit the attorney general said that testimony would be taken in the case, beginning at New York next month.

As to the Greene and Gaynor case Mr. Krox said the government had no thought of abandoning its case and every possible means would be exhausted to secure the return of Greene and Gayner to the United States.

Girl Essays the Role of Snake Charmer and is Severely Bitten by the Reptile.

Revere. Mass., Aug. 22.-A 12-year-old girl, who tried to enact the role of a the morning, but did not have it on dursnake charmer, was attacked by a python at an annual show here.

The woman who usually does the act was sick and her place had been taken for several nights by the girl. She had no trouble in managing the hage reptiles until a newcomer was added to the collection, a snake 14 feet long. When the snakes were brought on the new reptile rushed at the girl and fast-ened its fangs in her hand. The child fought the snake bravely and succeeded in releasing its hold, but before she could escape from the cage the reptile seized her by the leg.

There was a rush of attendants to the rear of the platform to assist the little actor. Before they could reach her she had fainted away. Manager Weller heat off the reptile with a club, and catching up the child made his escape from the cage, but not before the snake had fastened its teeth for an instant in his hand. Other attendants pinioned the snake to the floor with long iron torks and got it back into the box before any further damage was done.

BITTER AGAINST GERMANY

French Talk of Wiping Out the Defeats of Thirty-two Years Ago and Recovering Lost Territory.

Berlin, Aug. 22.-The outburst of French feeling against Germany that took place at the celebration of the anniversary of the battle of Mars-La-Tour (or-Vionville, fought on August 16, 1876) is described circumstantially by a correspondent telegraphing from Strasburg. Many inhabitants of Lorraine crossed the frontier in order to participate in the ceremonies. Bishop Turning of Nancy, addressing these persons, said:

"You come across the border in spite of German cannon and in spite of the unhappiness hanging over your provinces to show here, on French soil, your un-shaken fidelity to the old fatherland. Through your presence you ask the silent but eloquent questions: How long share we wait-for you? When will you come to liberate us? Gen. Cuny. who followed, said: Comrades of 1870: You come here in order to send fraternal greetings across he Moselle and Vosges to those whose carts remain French and say to them that your hope of the future, which will wipe out the defeats of the past, will never die.

J.P. MORGAN IS OBSTINATE

Will Not Interfere in Settling Coal Strike at Present Time.

NOSTATEMENTTOMAKE

Wall Street Believes He Could End the Trouble by an Order if He So Desired.

New York, Aug. 23.-J. Pierpont Morgan has made it plain that he will not at this time take any measures toward the settlement of the coal strike. The banker's office had been besieged by persons desirous of learning his attitude, for Wall street believes that notwithstanding the independent stand of the operators. Morgan could end the strike with an order if he so desired. He declined at first to talk on the subject at all, but just before closing hours he gave orders that the paper men should be admitted.
"Well what do you want to ask me?"
he said in his usual blunt fushion when they came in.

"Do you intend taking any hand in the strike?" he was first asked. "What action can I take? I am not the president of those roads. Why don't you leave the matter alone? Why don't you let them settle it between them?" Reminded of Operators' Boast.

Mr. Morgan was reminded that the operators had boasted that they knew he would not interfere between them and the He was asked for an adirmation or denial of the report. he replied.

"Will you interfere?"
"I will not say that I will or will not." Mr. Morgan was urged to make a statenear of his purposes and views.

"I won't make any statement now. I con't think it is the proper time to make a statement. When the proper time arrives I may make one."

It will be recalled that the operators in 1900 obeyed Mr. Morgan's suggestion to bring the strike to an end without a murmur. His homecoming was eagerly anticipated because it was hoped that he would take similar action in the present Useless to Visit New York. "There will be no conference between the coal road operators and Mitchell, said Treasurer Walker of the Delaware & Hudson Coal Company when shown a Chicago dispatch saying that President Mitchell was on his way to this city to attend a meeting to be held in J. P. Morgan's office to end the strike.

"Mitchell is wasting car fare coming here," he continued. "We have nothing to arbitrate. Of course, as Mitchell says, he would be glad to meet any committee that has for its purpose the settlement of the strike. He has everything to gain and nothing to lose by such a course. He is beaten and he knows it. strikers know it, and they are dissatis-fied. I believe a majority of them want to go back to work right now."

SAYS SHE MUST AID FAMILY IN WISCONSIN.

Mrs. Harris Hunter Arrested in New York for Begging-Said to Have Cellected $50,000.

New York, Aug. 23.—The police have arrested a woman representing herseif to be Mrs. Harris Hunter, the widow of a one-time member of the Chicago board of trade, on the technical charge of vagrancy and a magistrate has held the woman in $000 bail for examination. She is 50 years of age, slight of build, with gray hair and was dressed in deep mourning. Mrs. Hunter had tried to obtain financial aid in banking houses by saying that she had an invalid brother for whom she wished to buy an invalid's chair. It was discovered that for the past seven years a woman answering her description had been going the rounds of the prominent brokers offices, collecting money upon one pretense or another. She invariably represented herself as the widow of a former president of the Chicago board of trade, it was said, and as having lost her money through various failures. It is alleged that she has traveled from San Francisco to New York, collecting money all the time, nuril, it is estimated, she has amassed at least $50,000.

Mrs. Hunter says of herself: "I come from Sheridan. Wis., where I have left a father S1 years old, a son down with consumption and a daughter 14 years of age. I have been living in Brooklyn. The folks out West have no means of support so I set about securing aid for them. In receiving money from people in this city I have done no wrong.

MORGAN'S BIG FEE.

Commission of Sic,000,000 for Promoting Bond Conversion Plan of Steel Trust.

Trenton, N.J., Aug. 21.-A supplemental affidavit in behalf of the United States Steel Corporation was filed in the court of chancery today in the cuit brought against the concern by J. Aspinwall Hodge to restrain the conversion of $250,000,000 7 per cent, preferred stock into $250,000,000 5 per cent, bonds. One of the amdavits is by George W. Perkins of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. and also chairman of the steel cor-poration's finance committee. Mr. Perkins goes at length into explanations as to the reason that prompted the committee to recommend the bond conversion plan and the payment of $10,000,000 commission to J. P. Morgen & Co. An attidavit by Joseph E. Corrigan of the law firm of Guthrie, Cravath & Henderson tells of a statement made to Mr. Guthrie in his presence by James Lancaster, who gave testimony for Hodge, to the effect that the entire plant of the United States Steel Corporation was not worth more than $500,000,000. According to Corrigan, Lancaster had many meetings at the office of Abraham I. Elkus of the firm of James. Schell & Elkus. Lancaster told Corrigan in Elkus office that they expected to make big money out of the suit. Corrigan states that he learned of Lancaster through his efforts to locate Peter Power in the Northern Securities Company suit, Power having been at one ime employed by Lancaster.

Mr. Perkins, in his affidavit, stated that the financial committee of the United States Steel Corporation realized the necessity of having more cash capital to protect itself against money stringencies and the conversion plan was decided upon because it would reduce the fixed charges $1,500,000 yearly. The commission of $10,000,000 to J. P. Morgan & Co. was agreed upon because of the risk that firm would be obliged to take in going into the market to purchase $80,000,000 of preferred stock of the corporation and the advancement of $20,000,000, both rushing out the minate men. The usual of which acts were part of the agreement between the corporation and J. P. Morgan & Co.

New York Capitalists Planning a Trust to Control Business of This Country and Canada.

Louisville. Kr., Aug. 22.—The Times today says: "Charles D. Gates, president and general manager of the Turner. Day & Woolworth Handle Company, has just returned from New York, where he conferred with capitalists who are promoting a $25,000,000 trust to take in all the axe manufactories, the handle maunfactories and the grindstone factories in this country and Canada, the plants to be operated underone management. "Plans for the formation of the trust have been perfected and arrangements have already been made to a take over the larger plants though the & Co.'s branch house in Hamilton, O. interested in the project, which is to be financed by a big New York trust com-pany to the extent of $25,000,000 if nec-

"An offer of $1,000,000 has been made for the Turner, Day & Wollworth plant | but Mr. Gates refused to discuss the matter farther than to state: "You can say that such a deal is on. Matters have so far progressed that options have been given on most of the plants desired.

DENOUNCE TRUSTS.

The Trans-Mississippi Commercial Congress Adopts Resolutions by Bare Majority.

St. Paul. Minn., Aug. 22.-When the Trans-Mississippi Commerciai Congress was called to order today for the closing session, J. A Gardner of St. Louis secured the floor and moved the adoption of anti-trust resolutions which he presentd. These slightly differed from the Wetmore resolutions of earlier in the session and precipitated a lively debute. The point of discussion was more whether the proposition would be generally looked on as partisan action by the congress than on the merits of the case. The attendance was small, but the warmth of the debute made up for that. By a vote of 20 to 19 the resolutions were adopted as follows: Whereas, the system has been a menace Whereas, the system has been a mediate to our republican institutions, and Whereas, if showed to continue to form combinations in restraint of trade and competition the wealth of the entire country will be concentrated in the hands of a few and Whereas, the said combinations are said to destroy the hope and ambitions of the country, it being well understood that the hope and ambition of the roung men of this naand america of the young men of this ha-tion have made it great; therefore be it. Reserved, by this Congress that the Presi-dent of the United States be urged to use all power vested in his office to the end-that the growing power and the induence of the trusts may be destroyed; and be it further. Resolved, that if in the wisdom of the national Congress the laws now on the statute books are insufficient to suppress this growing etil, that other more stringent and efficient laws be speedily enacted.

BATTLE WITH POLICE

Man Armed with Two Razors Shot to Death After Wounding an

Terre Haute, Ind., Aug. 22.—Clinton Pierce, an iron puddler, was killed in a light with five policemen last evening, and one of the officers was so badly injured that he may die.

·Plerce, who had been on a protracted spree, became enraged at a street car conductor and ran into a barber shop to get weapons. He returned with two rezors, but the car had gone. Some one telephoned to the police station and five officers responded in a patrel wagon. Pierce saw them coming and ran to meet them. They had to avoid his rushes as they jumped to the ground.

Patrolman Sanford Pierce was badly slashed. One patrolman used his club and three others used their pistols. The crazed man received three bullets and ited in a few minutes.

Policeman Pierce was taken to the hos pital, where the surgeons took many stitches in his wounds and said he might ive_

Wheeling, he found himself face to face with a dashing looking man. The moon's rays fell upon his figure, but the broad-brimmed hat shaded his face, so that only a general view could be obtained. "You are at perfect liberty to say as many as you choose, sir." replied Roger. He had no idea who this man was or what he wanted, and in his present condition it was a matter of small importance to him. Captain Grant did not realize what a volcano he was arousing -perhaps he did not care, being such a lire-eater himself.

"My words shall be brief and to the point. That lady you were speaking to was Miss Richmond?"

The words were in the form of a question, and though the Virginian had started at first, he drew his form up proudly. "Taking it for granted that your conjecture is the truth, what business is that of yours, may I inquire?" he said, with some show of warmth. "You are impudent, Roger Darrel. It is my business in so far that Miss Richmond is my promised wife, and it behooves a man to see that her honor is not tarnished by claudestine meetings such as the one I have just witnessed, said the Captain in pompous tones. Some years before, while traveling in Europe, he had met in the company with which he was making the tour, a strange, mysterious man, of whose antecedents no one knew,

One most peculiar circumstance attached to his presence was the fact that no matter where seen he invariably wore upen his left hand a black kid glove. Speculation was rife. Some guessed it was a bet he was carrying out, others that his hand had been disfigured from birth, while one even whispered it was his belief that the Count Romanoff, as ed political Russian convict, who had been branded on the hand.

When the Captain raised his handkerchief to his face, he did so with his left hand, and no wonder Roger gave year to an exclamation when he saw that it was incased in a black kid giove.

"You recognize me, then. I had not forgotten you, Roger Darrei, and the fact of our having once traveled in company will not prevent me from running my sword clese to your heart."

The following morning, as Roger was seated on the old for close to the little stream in the forest, he was approached by a man wearing the undress uniform of an officer, who placed a letter in his hand. Of course it was a challenge from the duelist Captain.

A few words, and Lieur, Carson walked away. He did not note the trembling of the bushes close by, or see the white face that was thrust out after his departure. There had been an eavesdropper to the interview.

Her "Petals."

To move a poet to compliment a beautiful woman does not seem to be a difficult task. To move a Quaker to compliment the pretty gown of a pretty girl is a different matter. It was rarely indeed that compliments of either kind were extracted from the poet of the Friends. Whittier, who, with all his keen appreciation of beauty, retained a Quakerly preference for simplicity in attire, and a Quakerly shyness and reluctance to include in

Nevertheless, it was recently related of him that once, seated on the plazza of a summer cottage, he was a silent listener to a discussion by a group of ladies of the costume worn by a girl who was crossing the lawn not far gowns-one of those apparently simple "creations," which to the knowing feminine eye are complex indeed. Many were the comments and admiring remarks upon its elegance and style as she floated past among the greenery in gauzy cloud of rose and faint blue.

one of the ladies laughingly appealed to Mr. Whittier for his opinion; adding, however, that she supposed he would disdain to have one on such a matter. "No," said the poet, looking benevolently after the radiant young beauty; and with a poetical reference to the flower-like face, be added. "Truly I think that young lady's petals are exquisitely fringed and tinted." In Africa a cocoanut lamp filled with

> Home-Made Windmills. A farmer of Dodge County, Neb.

"I have had some experiments with homemade windmills that I would like to contribute for the benefit of your readers. I have been experimenting with three designs, shown at 1, 2 and 3. The shaft to which the arms are attached are upright, the four arms projecting at right angles across the upper end of the shaft. By placing swinging frames covered with canvas on the arms the wind will catch and turn the shaft by blowing against the fans on tration are inexpensive, as they are the sides indicated by arrows. As they pass around to the opposite side they

HOME-MADE WINDMILL will open as seen at C. In Figure 1 at A will be seen one of the wings catching the breeze and is held in place by a rope attached to the arm in the rear of it; as it passes around to B its edge is towards the wind. Passing a little further the wind strikes it on the opposite side, and, having nothing to resist, it raises out of the way until it comes around to the point D, when it falls in position to again catch the wind. The same principle is found in Figures 2 and 3. These wings are so constructed as to become pendulous and unrestrained when returning against the wind, to be caught rigid when the wind acts upon them so as to obtain power."

Soil for Small Fruits. It is almost impossible to do the work of preparing the soil for small fruits too thoroughly, and this is particularly the case with strawberry plants. Much of this preparatory work may be done in the late summer and fall as soon as the crop now occupying the soil is removed. Fertilizers should be applied. the soil should be plowed and theroughly harrowed and covered with a crop of some kind that may be plowed under in the early spring.

After such crop is plowed under the soil should be harrowed several times to put it in the best possible condition before setting the plants. If one has a strip of ground that can be used for the purpose at this time it will be found a good plan to set out a number of varietics of strawberry plants now, using the pot-grown plants that are offered by plantsmen at this season. These plants will fruit next summer, and while they are quite inexpensive there is no cheaper way of having a test bed.

than usual. Farmers ing tops they often get out of order from not being tied tightly enough. By using this binder you can tie the stalks firmly. It is made by taking a piece of barrel stave about eighteen inches long, and two sticks three feet long, with rings to slip over end of stick. When closed together, fasten hook about one foot from lower tips into the windpipe to draw out the end. Use a pair of hinges to fasten sticks to the stave, and, taking a strap 31-3 feet long, with one end fasten to stick as shown. Cut several holes in the end of strap to fit any bundle. When the bundle is bound, take twine and tie. Then release the binder and you have a firmly tied sheaf - A. V. Herron, in Farm and Home.

Coops for Young Chicks. When the early-hatched chicks are two or three months old it is a good plan to go over the flock and take out such pullets as are promising and which will form the laying flock of the winer. Such chicks must be separated from the main flock, so that they may be given the need attention, and must be provided with shelter at night, even though they have the range during the day. Coops like that shown in the illusformed from large dry goods boxes. Saw the back of a box so that a slanting roof may be nailed on and be covered with tarred paper to make it waterproof. The door is hinged to the box and

The three auger holes of good size just above the door provide ventilation. although at one side is an opening to permit fresh air in the coop while the weather is warm, this opening to be securely covered with heavy wire netting of rather fine mesh. If for any reason it is desirable to confine the birds for any portion of the day, they will be quite comfortable if a water can is placed inside the coop, as shown in Figure 1, and it is secured at either side by a loop of wire to a screw, so that it cannot be tipped over. The water may be poured into the can from the outside, through the wire netting. The small food trough, shown at Figure 3. is so simple anyone can make it. Two end pieces are secured by a bottom board, the desired size: a narrow strip is placed at the back and another strip nailed from the highest point.

From these two strips are fastened heavy wires, which permit the chicks to thrust their heads through and get Remedy for Gapes.

Gapes are usually due to filth, the eating of the residuum of food previously given and feeding in damp places. It earthworms, but facts have been discovered substantiating this claim. The best remedy for gapes, if the chicks will bly be worth more eat, is to add a teaspoonful of spirits of turpentine to a mixture of one pint of know that when tycorn meal and a half pint of middlings. says an exchange. Thoroughly incorporate the turpentine with the dry material, then scald as much of the material as may be required and feed to the chicks on a clean board. Put ten drops of carbolic acid in every pint of drinking-water and change the water frequently every day. There is no sure remedy for gapes, and inserting feather cape worms can be done only by an experienced person. There are suggested remedies, but they are sometimes as fatal to the chicks as the gapes.

The Runt Pig.

We have heard people say that a runt pig was not worth raising, and it would be better to kill it at birth. This may be true where the litter is a large one, but if the sow has milk enough for it and the others it costs but little to raise it to weaning time. Then take it from the others, that they may not crowd it at the trough or in the sleeping quarters, and feed it regularly to fatten quickly. It will never eat a very At length, to close the conversation, large amount or make a very large hog. but if healthy it will fatten quickly and soon be almost as broad as it is long. The cheapest and best pork we ever made was a runt pig that we killed when it weighed a little less than 150 pounds, so fat that he would not stand up long enough to eat.
